The 2013 Australasia Self Storage Demand Study is designed to enhance the understanding of issues influencing the viability and performance of the self storage industry across the major capital cities of Australia and Auckland, New Zealand. This study analyses both existing storage users and the general population about their awareness, use and expectations of self storage and aims to determine:

- How many people are using self storage?
- Who is using self storage (gender, age, marital status, housing situation)?
- Why do people store?
- How do customers choose a facility?
- Sizes of storage units used
- Attitudes to services and customer satisfaction
- What drives the demand for self storage?

This is an essential document for owners, investors, lenders, valuers, analysts and consultants in the self storage industry.
